

Pepper Raefin

WEBB Auction Piece
"Strange Noise"
Value: $200
Oil on Ceconite, 16 x 15 in.

"The Micah"
Acrylic on canvas, 30 x 36 in

Pepper Raefin's artwork is inspired by a variety of historical and spiritual sources. She is a painter, and also makes altar candles, jewelry, and totem statues that reference Shamanism, Animism, and the art of the Native Americans, including the Mojave. Her art also makes use of symbols and imagery present in various religions from around the world, with the concentration on tribal traditions. Pepper Raefin's altar candles, jewelry, and other decorative items blend the same spiritual imagery together for an eclectic mix of earthy, tribal delights. She uses shells, feathers, clay, wood and textiles to create her modern-primitive pieces. Her expertise extends to oil painting, where she concentrates on figurative and imaginative work. Her paintings are inspired by dream and children's fairy tales.