"Cupido"

Value: $ 800

Leigh Wyatt has been working with glass since 1993. Leigh enjoys learning new skills and broadening the possibilities of her work. She uses traditional Italian glassblowing techniques such as cane and murrini, leveraging the transparency of glass to achieve her distinctive colors and lines. This series creates a visual feeling of "square peg/round hole."

Jason Lawson draws much of his inspiration from the works of Italian artists of the early 20th century. Trained in the age-old technique of off-hand glassblowing, he revels in the fluidity and immediacy of this amazing material.
